

DSA Code of Ethics

At Traci Lynn Fashion Jewelry, we're very proud to be a member of the Direct Selling Association (DSA).

What It Means to You

Displaying the DSA logo is a privilege given only to companies that have made the commitment to honor the DSA's Code of Ethics. By displaying this logo, we promise to conduct business according to the highest standards of integrity. In addition, we promise to make a situation right in the event a problem does arise.

A complaint involving any DSA company may be filed with the Independent Code Administrator of the DSA Code of Ethics. The administrator is not affiliated with any member company and is responsible for enforcing the DSA Code of Ethics. The administrator is authorized to make decisions and will do everything possible to resolve complaints to the satisfaction of all parties involved. All member companies agree to honor the administrator's decisions.

What It Means to Us

To ensure compliance with the DSA's Code of Ethics, we train all Traci Lynn Fashion Jewelry consultants to:

- Tell you who they are, why they're approaching you and what products they are selling
- Explain how to return a product or cancel an order
- Respect your privacy by calling at a time that is convenient for you
- Promptly end demonstration or presentation at your request
- Provide accurate and truthful information regarding the price, quality, quantity, performance and availability of their product or service
- Offer a written receipt in language you can understand
- Provide his or her name and contact information, as well as the contact information of the company he or she represents
- Offer a complete description of any warranty or guarantee

Learn more about the DSA.

View the complete DSA Code of Ethics.